PHILLIES FAIL TO GAIN 1ST PLACE

National League Park, Philadelphia, Oct. 2.—The Phillies lost a chance to step into first place again by dividing a double-header with the Boston Braves here this afternoon. In the first contest Alexander, premier pitcher of the National league, scored his sixteenth shutout of the season, blanking the Braves by a 2 to 0 score.

Boston had little difficulty, however, in stopping the Phillies for the second, the pennant chasers playing loosely and letting in most of the Braves' runs through errors. "Lucky" Al Demaree allowed them nine hits, but for the most they were scattered. At the most the score should not have been so large. Despite the fact that his right arm was struck by a stinging drive from Demaree, Reulbach pitched the entire game for the Braves and at no stage was he in serious danger of being walloped.

The standings tonight are: Brooklyn, 609; Philadelphia, 604.

First Game
Boston	0 2 0
Philadelphia	2 7 2
Ragon, Neff and Gowdy; Alexander and Killifer.
Second Game
Boston	4 0 1
Philadelphia	1 7 3
Reulbach and Gowdy; Demaree and Killifer.

Brooklyn, Oct. 2.—Jack Coombs, "come-back," stopped the Giants in their tracks this afternoon and had the Dodgers safe on their way to the pennant. Allowing only six hits, he turned back the McGrawites without a run. Ten thousand fans, in honor of Rucker day and the other Dodgers, saw the fray.

Opposed to Coombs, one of baseball's oldest stars, was the National league's newest sensation, Ferdie Schupp. But for an error by Fletcher in the fourth, the youthful hurler would have escaped without being scored against. Daubert reached first on that error and took second on an error by Herzog. Wheat scored him with a single to left. Anderson finished the game for the Giants and saw one more added to the Brooklyn total, on two hits, a walk and a wild pitch.

The score:
New York	0 5 1
Brooklyn	2 4 1
Schupp, Anderson and Rariden; Coombs and Miller.

Superstitious Musicians.

Musicians are often singularly superstitious. Paderewski once ordered an expensive apartment in London, but refused to enter when he found it was No. 13 of a certain street, although he paid for it. Massenet has written twenty-one operas and many other compositions, but on all of his manuscripts page 12½ is written in place of 13.

SANTA FE FIGHTS ADAMSON BILL

Chicago, Oct. 2.—Plans to enlist all stockholders in the Santa Fe railroad in a fight on congress to enact measures changing provisions in the Adamson bill were revealed today in a statement sent to stockholders of the company by E. P. Ripley, president.

In part, the statement read: "The brotherhoods made it clear at the session of congress just ended that they will resist with all their power any such remedial legislation, whether it seeks to prohibit strikes in advance of public investigation or to put any form of restraint upon labor combinations. It is, therefore, reasonable to assume that the public demand for a remedy will have to be forceful or the public will continue in its present defenseless position."

"Since the precedent of abandoning arbitration and hurriedly paying the demands of railroad unions by special congressional enactment has thus been established, does it not behoove you to exercise your influence in favor of appropriate remedial legislation?"

MASSACRE OF GREEKS BY TURKS

The Turkish commander in Armenia, according to a News Agency report, has issued a proclamation to his troops protesting against the failure of the central powers to supply more ammunition, and declaring that the Turkish army in the Caucasus has been forced to rely wholly upon its own resources.

WARSHIPS AID IN SOMME BATTLE

With the French Armies Before Peronne, France, Oct. 2.—Naval forces have joined the allies here in the great land battle of the Somme, seventy miles from the sea. Iron-clad monitors, utilizing France's magnificent network of canals along the Somme, centering at Peronne, are participating in the daily bombardment of Mount St. Quentin, which dominates Peronne from the east. They advance slowly on the German stronghold as the last lines creep forward and have done much effective work.

Mount St. Quentin, constituting the key to the defense of Peronne is slowly and steadily being encircled by the French in the same manner that preceded the capture of Combeles. The position, a strong one, stands on the summit of a hill overlooking Peronne.

Marine gunners who serve the pieces aboard the monitors go about their business in the same methodical, clockwork manner as ordinary workmen beginning their day's labor. After their morning plunge in the canal and breakfast, they begin tuning up the guns.

On land the same mechanical process goes on. The artillerymen "wash up," eat breakfast and then, apparently without the necessity of the officers' presence, begin serving the guns on schedule time like so many factory employes beginning work on the whistle.

Occasional German shells, falling near, never interrupt for a single instant the routine of their day's labor. Only the lunch hour does that.

From an artillery observation post directly facing Mount St. Quentin I watched the French army's methodical advance, encircling the village of Mount St. Quentin. The town itself already has suffered the same fate as the 48 villages captured to date by the allies. It is completely reduced to heaps of brickbats and protruding tree stumps.

The Germans, however, still retain strongly fortified positions, especially in the cellars. The French artillery was completely encircling the hill of the village for the purpose of interrupting German communication with the rear, while occasional shells were directed at Mount St. Quentin itself to keep the Germans busy in their dugouts and cellars. Invariably these shells sent up great red clouds of brick dust from the pulverized houses.

The bulk of the artillery continued this methodical destruction of German defenses which still separate the French first line trenches from the base of the hill.

When the proper time comes, Mount St. Quentin will be captured by the French and with a minimum loss of men, an artillery officer told me today. In the final assault the infantry will dash forward preceded 100 yards by a curtain fire of shells that will not permit the surviving Germans to inflict any serious losses on the attackers.

SHIFT GENERALS ON VILLA'S TRAIL

El Paso, Oct. 2.—Villa's successful attacks on Chihuahua City and Cuahuahachic have caused a shake-up of Carranzista military commanders in the north. General Ramos' command has been organized and General Carlos Ozuena has been sent from Saltillo to Chihuahua City to take charge of operations against the Villistas, bringing with him 1,500 infantry and cavalry reinforcements.

Natives fleeing from Cuahuahachic declare that the Villistas looted the town after the Carranzista troops had retreated from it. Following the line of retreat of the de facto troops a detachment of Villistas is said to have captured six passenger trains on the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient railway, but did not molest the passengers.

To the Fathers and Mothers: To the Live American Boys and Their Sweethearts:

Here is one of the best of the Great Triangle dramas

"The Bugle Call"

By C. Gardner Sullivan and Thos. H. Ince Starring the fourteen-year-old son of the great legitimate star

"BUSTER" COLLIER

The story of a typical American boy, the tender devotion to a mother dead, the advent of the "new mother," nearly breaking the ties of comradeship between father and son, the sturdy manliness of the boy in saving this same "mother" from danger and the final wedding of a close bond of friendship and understanding.

The setting is of the West, and the story is one of those rarely appealing ones in which the tears are quickly chased away by smiles.
